

Writing for Publication: Guidelines and Tips for Success

Professor Desley Hegney
Director of Research
Alice Lee Centre for Nursing Studies
National University of Singapore

Objectives

- To provide information on authorship principles
- To provide an overview of aspects of publishing from the Journal perspective
- To talk about some tricks around getting published
- To introduce journal impact factors
- To understand different journal citation reports and the significance of these
- To introduce the h-index
- To talk about what all this means to the author/s trying to get published and to use these publications for grant applications/promotion/ and so on.

Vancouver Protocol

- Basis for Australian NHMRC/AVCC Statement and Guidelines
- 'Are instructions to authors on how to prepare manuscripts, not to editors on publication style'
- 'Authors must follow the instructions to authors in the journal as to what topics are suitable for that journal and the types of papers that may be submitted ... In addition, the journal's instructions are likely to contain other requirements unique to that journal, such as the number of copies of a manuscript that are required, acceptable languages, length of articles, and approved abbreviations.'

Vancouver Protocol

- Redundant or duplicate publication is where the material in the paper substantially overlaps with one already published (therefore one should acknowledge if paper has been published in whole or in part and source should be noted)
- If a paper has been rejected by another journal it can be submitted to another.
- Complete report following publication of an abstract or poster is also acceptable (not published in full)
- Preliminary release of findings to the media, of results of a paper that has been accepted, but not published violates the policies of many journals. Usually one should ask for permission of the Editor.

Vancouver Protocol

- Identifying information should 'not be published in written descriptions, photographs and pedigrees unless the information is essential for scientific purposes and the patient (or parent or guardian) gives written informed consent for publication'. This means the person should be shown the full manuscript being submitted for publication.
- While omitting identifying details, data must not 'be altered or falsified in an attempt to gain anonymity'. Complete anonymity is difficult to achieve and therefore 'informed consent should be obtained if there is any doubt.'

Vancouver Protocol

- Authorship
  - 'All persons designed as authors should qualify for authorship. Each author should have participated sufficiently in the work to take public responsibility for the content'.
  - 'Authorship credit should be based only on substantial contributions to 1) conception and design, or analysis and interpretation of the data; and to 2) drafting the article or revising it critically for important intellectual content; and on 3) final approval of the version to be published.' All three conditions must be met. 'Participation solely in the acquisition of funding or the collection of data does not justify authorship. General supervision of the research group is not sufficient for authorship. Any part of an article critical to its main conclusions must be the responsibility of at least one author'.

Vancouver Protocol

- Authorship (cont)
- Editors may ask authors to describe what each author has contributed and this may be published.
- 'Multicentre trials are attributed to a corporate author. All members of the group who are named as authors, either in the authorship position below the title or in a footnote, should fully meet the above criteria for authorship. Group members who do not meet these criteria should be listed, with their permission, in the Acknowledgements or in an appendix ...'
- The order of authorship should be a joint decision of the co-authors. Because the order is assigned in different ways, its meaning cannot be inferred accurately unless it is stated by the authors. Authors may wish to explain the order of authorship in a footnote. In deciding on the order, authors should be aware that many journals limit the number of authors listed in the table of contents ...'

Vancouver Protocol

- Ethics
- Most journals will not publish work that has not been cleared by an ethics committee. Ethics committees will not give retrospective permission.
- Financial support
- 'Authors are responsible for recognising and disclosing financial and other conflicts of interest that might bias their work. They should acknowledge in the manuscript all financial support for the work and other financial and personal connections to the work.'

Journal Perspective

- o Journals need manuscripts
- o Publish in a specific area (check the Aims and Scope)
- o Check requirements of style for that journal
- o How is it configured (Editor/s, Editorial Board, Reviewers)
- o Editors managing reviewer's

Endnote

- Worth using this or similar product
- You can share the library with co-authors once it has been established and as long as they have compatible versions.
- Allows you to change the referencing style easily
- Can tell if it is being used electronically as cursor shows grey over reference.

Author perspective

- Impact Factor
- Audience
- Speed of publication
- Ease of submission
- Review's comments
- How published (on-line, open access)
- Copyright considerations

Getting Published – some tricks

- Have someone else read the paper before it is submitted
- Be patient, but follow up if delay in feedback
- Don't take reviewer's comments personally
- Do an accompanying page on changes
- Use track changes to show what has been changed in the manuscript (or follow the Editor's instructions)
- Re-submit elsewhere if you want

Impact Factors

- ISI Web of Knowledge (Internet demonstration)
- Most funding bodies now want you to write next to each journal its impact factor
- It should be on your CV
- It changes yearly (so needs to be upgraded at least yearly)
- Try to publish with other disciplines as this increases the impact factor of your work (nursing journals are only about 1)

H-index

- 'an index that quantifies both the actual scientific productivity and the apparent scientific impact of a scientist. It is based on the set of the scientist's most cited papers and the number of citations that they have received in other people's publications'.
  - Jorge E Hirsch (Hirsch index or Hirsch number)
  - Only most highly cited articles contribute to the h-index
  - Different databases will produce different H-index (Scopus, Google Scholar, ISI). Smaller databases more accurate
- (Reference: Wikipedia accessed 15/8/08).

- Needs to be constantly updated
- Fun

The screenshot shows the homepage of the University of Queensland's eSpace institutional repository. The browser window title is "Home - UQ eSpace - Windows Internet Explorer" and the address bar shows "http://espace.library.uq.edu.au/". The search bar contains "university of queensland". The website header includes the UQ logo and navigation links: "UQ HOME", "SEARCH", "CONTACTS", "STUDY", "NEWS", "EVENTS", "MAPS", "LIBRARY", and "my". Below the header is a secondary navigation bar with "Home", "Browse", "Search", "Deposit", "Login", "About", and "FAQs".

The main content area features a welcome message: "Welcome to The University of Queensland's institutional digital repository". Below this is a "Quick Search UQ eSpace" search box with a "Search" button and a note: "Use Advanced Search to search by multiple criteria." To the right is a "Daily Snapshot" section with tabs for "News", "Recently Added", "Recently Popular", and "Tags". The "News" tab is active, showing a list of updates:

- Download statistics are back up to date
- New contact number for UQ eSpace
- Search Faceting enabled
- Change to download statistics algorithms
- Field of Research Codes

Below the search box, there is a link: "Did you know that you can customize your UQ eSpace RSS feeds by multiple search criteria?" followed by a link "What is RSS?". At the bottom, it states: "Our open repository content is indexed by:".

What does all this mean?

- It is a game that you have to learn and manage
  - Manage students
  - Manage other research team members or other authors
  - Control the media output to ensure complying with the Statement
- You must publish
  - Many funding bodies require you to link the publication to the grant
  - Most funding bodies require you to report each year on your outputs
  - Should I take on a consultancy if I can't publish from it?
- Conflicts (do I publish for people to read or for my career?)
- Copyright
- It is always excellent to see your name in print
